Tip: Do not attempt to expand the panel by pulling on the vinyl itself. Only touch the pole and bar at the top of the panel during this process.

4. Place the bottom end of the pole into the circular indent on the foot. (Image 3)

5. Expand the panel by pulling on the top bar of the retractable panel.

6. Once the panel has been expanded to a height that meets the tab on the pole, insert the tab into the groove at the top of the panel. Do this by tilting the top bar toward you and slipping the tab into the groove. (Image 4). Return the panel bar to an upright position.

7. Unfasten the clip at the center of the pole (circled in Image 5) and expand the panel only by further extending the pole.

8. Extend until the credits at the bottom of the panel are visible. If you see white below the credits, you've extended too far. See Image 6 for an example of a correctly extended panel.

9. Secure the panel by closing the clip at the center of the pole.

Tip: Have a colleague stand in front of the panel to let you know when the panel has been fully extended. Be careful not to pull the panel out too far! If you can see white or fabric below the credits at the bottom of the panel, you're at risk of pulling the panel out of the base entirely.
