The Humanities Kansas Speakers Bureau engages audiences with in-person and online humanities-based presentations designed to share stories that inspire, spark conversations that inform, and generate insights that strengthen civic engagement.

Humanities Kansas believes that stories carry our culture and ideas change the world. Since 1972, Humanities Kansas has worked together with statewide partners and supporters to inspire all Kansans to draw on Kansas' histories, literature, and culture to enrich their lives and to serve the communities and state we call home.

VISIT HUMANITIESKANSAS.ORG
The Humanities Kansas Speakers Bureau connects communities with humanities professionals to engage audiences with stories that spark conversations and generate new ideas. Hosting a speaker is free; HK covers all the costs for in-state nonprofit organizations.

The presentations in this edition are available through January 2023, or as funding allows.

BOOKING A PROGRAM

How to bring a Humanities Kansas speaker to your community

- Review the catalog and select a speaker and topic.
- Contact the speaker and confirm time, date, format (in person or online), and location.
- Apply online at humanitieskansas.org for HK program funds to bring the speaker to your community.
- Publicize your event. Download a press release, speaker bio, photo, and more!
- Tell us how it went. After the event, fill out a Speakers Bureau evaluation and cost-share form online (required).
- Select presentations can be conducted in person or online, in English or Spanish!

CONTACT

Abigail Kaup, Program Officer
(785) 357-0359 or abigail@humanitieskansas.org

The opinions expressed by the speakers do not necessarily reflect those of Humanities Kansas.
A History of the American Indian Boarding Schools

Renewed calls for investigations into the abuses to American Indian children have brought new scrutiny to the boarding school system. This talk will examine the thinking behind the creation of federal schools for youth including Haskell Indian Nations University, originally known as the United States Indian Industrial Training School, and how this system affected Native communities in the short and long term. The American Indian story is one of cultural survival, but what are the next steps for reckoning with this difficult and painful part of our national history? Presented by Eric Anderson.

Eric is a citizen of the Potawatomi Nation and professor of history at Haskell Indian Nations University in Lawrence.

Eric Anderson
He/Him/His
eanderson@haskell.edu
(785) 331-8682
Council Grove

The Dockum Drugstore Sit-In

Seeking racial equity and an end to segregation, Wichita’s Black students organized and staged a sit-in in 1958 at Wichita’s Dockum Drugstore. Long denied entry into the city’s movie theaters and restaurants, students exercised their right to peacefully protest over a three-week period at the popular lunch counter. What transpired, how it ended, and the lasting impact it had on race relations in the city is the focus of this talk. More broadly, the talk will explore how these types of protests transformed the struggle for racial equity in America. Presented by Prisca Barnes.

Prisca is the CEO and president of Storytime Village, Inc.

Prisca Barnes
She/Her/Hers
priscabarnes@storytimevillage.org
(316) 350-4511
Wichita
Nicodemus, a small, unincorporated town in Graham County, is the only remaining western town established by African Americans during the Reconstruction Period following the Civil War. Black homesteaders settled the town, which today is a National Historic Site. This pictorial history explores the unique experience of mothers and their children in Nicodemus, some of whom were the first members of their families born free. Within the context of settling in the West and at the end of Reconstruction, this presentation discusses the dynamics of mothers and their children after slavery, stories of children conceived in slavery but born free, and the contrast of life and decisions based on the simple concept of “choice,” which freedom afforded. Presented by Angela Bates.

Angela is the executive director and past president of the Nicodemus Historical Society.

Angela Bates
angela@ruraltel.net
(785) 839-8200
Bogue
Fighting for Equality: Women’s Suffrage in Kansas

Early Kansas history is known for its progressive stance on many issues and voting rights for women was no exception. In 1867, Kansas was the first state to attempt full voting rights for women. So why did it take 50 long years to make it a reality? Despite numerous advancements and several more firsts, it was not an easy or a quick undertaking. It also neglected the voices of all women. White middle-class women were credited with the success of the equality movement, while their allies of color most often faced discrimination and marginalization. This talk chronicles women’s suffrage in Kansas, highlighting events, leaders, and organizations key to the passage of the 1912 voting rights amendment to the state’s constitution. Presented by Sarah Bell.

Madame Mayor: The First Women Mayors in Kansas

Did you know that for a brief time in Kansas, women leaders dominated local elections? The passage of the 1887 municipal suffrage bill allowed women to vote in and stand for local elections. Women mayors were elected in several cities, and in Argonia, Mayor Susanna Salter became the first elected woman mayor in Kansas and the country. Other cities followed. This progress did not include women of color, who, despite being involved in civil and social affairs, did not have entry into elected roles. Yet, by the end of the 19th century, men again dominated the political landscape. Although short-lived, the influence of these early women civic leaders laid important groundwork. This talk weaves the chronology of women’s suffrage in the state with the stories of women elected leaders. Presented by Sarah Bell.

Sarah is the Director of the Kansas Museum of History.

Sarah Bell
She/Her/Hers
sarahkaybell@gmail.com
(636) 399-7814
Lawrence
Strangers In Town—Film Discussion

Strangers in Town tells the story of how global migration transformed and enriched Garden City, Kansas. Amidst the increased demands for housing, social services, education, and infrastructure, current students at Garden City High School are flourishing. This film explores their stories, gives meaning to the city’s motto “The World Grows Here,” and provides an inspiring view of human possibility in the face of change that resonates in all communities. After the screening of the 30-minute film, take part in a timely discussion that promotes understanding and uncovers our shared humanity. Presented by Dr. Debra Bolton.

Projector and internet access are needed for this program.

Dr. Debra Bolton is Director of Intercultural Learning and Academic Success and faculty member in the Department of Geography and Geospatial Sciences at Kansas State University.

Debra Bolton
dbolton@ksu.edu
Manhattan
Petroglyphs of the Kansas Smoky Hills

Too often Kansas history seems to start with Coronado’s trip through the state in 1541. For centuries before European arrival, Native people lived on the plains, and some left behind rock carvings on soft sandstone in the middle of the state. Based on the book Petroglyphs of the Kansas Smoky Hills, this presentation focuses on these carvings, the people who made them, and what the carvings tell us about those people and their relationship to the land. The presentation also discusses the challenges of dating and interpreting these carvings, the threats posed by erosion and vandalism, and the role of landowners whose properties shelters these carvings. Presented by Rex Buchanan.

Rex is the former director of the Kansas Geological Survey and the author of books about Kansas geology and water.

Rex Buchanan
(785) 691-8667
rex@kgs.ku.edu
Lawrence

William Allen White and the KKK In Kansas

The 1920s saw the re-emergence of the Ku Klux Klan across America, and sparked fear and violence against African Americans and other minority groups. As the editor of the Emporia Gazette, White was acutely aware of the growing presence of the KKK in Kansas following World War I. Seeing no candidates free of Klan influence, White declared, “I want to be governor to free Kansas from the disgrace of the Ku Klux Klan.” This presentation follows the raucous two-month campaign that had White traveling over 2,700 miles to deliver 104 speeches, all directed at expelling the KKK. Though he did not win, White’s efforts led to a Kansas Supreme Court ruling that outlawed the Klan in Kansas. Presented by Beverley Olson Buller.

Beverley is an author, an educator, and chair of the William Allen White Children’s Book Awards.

Beverley Olson Buller
She/Her/Hers
beverley@beverleybooks.com
(316) 284-2762
Newton
People, Places, and Politics in 1800s Kansas

Pioneer James R. Mead was a man of his times. Interested in commerce, politics, and conservation, he settled in the Kansas Territory in the 1850s. Known now as one of Wichita’s founding fathers, Mead was also influential as a trails outfitter, statesman, and railroad booster. What can be learned from Mead’s influence on the state’s early development? Presented by John Burchill.

John is an associate professor of criminal justice at Kansas Wesleyan University. He authored the book Bullets, Badges and Bridles – Horse Thieves and the Societies That Pursued Them.

John Burchill
He/Him/His
jkburchill@gmail.com
(785) 819-0789
Salina

Faith and Camp Funston

Camp Funston, located at Fort Riley near Junction City, was the largest of 16 divisional training camps built during World War I to house and train soldiers. Many new recruits encountered, for the first time, men from unfamiliar places, ethnicities, and religions. The camp was also the site of the first outbreak of influenza during the pandemic of 1917-1918. Existing in a unique place and time, the camp offers a look at how individual and collective responses to faith gripped the world. This talk explores the ways in which servicemen experienced and expressed faith in the camp as they prepared for war overseas. Presented by Patricia Cecil.

Patricia is the specialist curator for faith, religion, and WWI at the World War I Museum and Memorial in Kansas City, Missouri.

Patricia Cecil
She/Her/Hers
pcecil@theworldwar.org
(816) 888-8166
Kansas City

Presentation can be conducted in person or online.
The Harvey Girls: Women’s Roles in Railroads, Kansas, and US History

The mythology of the Harvey Girl looms large in Kansas history and across the western United States. The Fred Harvey Company, concessionaire along the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railway, offered young women employment opportunities as waitresses and tour guides. These women played a role in the economic and cultural history of Kansas and the American Southwest. This talk includes stories of women employed by the company as well as its founder, Fred Harvey, who lived in Leavenworth and opened his first lunchroom depot along the line in Topeka. Presented by Dr. Michaeline Chance-Reay.

Dr. Chance-Reay is Professor Emeritus of Women Studies and Education at Kansas State University.

Dr. Michaeline Chance-Reay
She/Her/Hers
mreay@ksu.edu
(785) 776-6254
Manhattan
Flour Power

During the Mexican Revolution, many immigrants made their way to Kansas to raise their families and work in the railroad, agricultural, industrial, and hospitality industries. A cultural offshoot for groups of Mexican residents settling in the Midwest was the search for the perfect tortilla, a staple of Mexican cuisine. Because corn tortillas were difficult to make by hand, many restaurants and home cooks substituted wheat flour tortillas for their signature dishes. This talk uncovers the rich history of Mexican immigration to Kansas and the journey of the humble but important tortilla. Presented by Gene Chávez.

Gene consults on diversity issues as president of Chávez and Associates.

During el periodo de la Revolución Mexicana, muchos inmigrantes llegaron a Kansas para establecer a sus familias y trabajar en el ferrocarril, agricultura, industria y sector hospitalario del estado. Un derivado cultural de este nuevo grupo de residentes Mexicanos que se establecieron en el Medio-oeste era la búsqueda de la tortilla perfecta, una tradición de la cocina mexicana. Como las tortillas de maíz eran difíciles de hacer a mano, muchos restaurantes y cocinas caseras substituyeron con tortilla de harina para sus platillos principales. Acompañemos a discutir la rica historia de la inmigración Mexicana a Kansas y la trayectoria de la humilde pero importante tortilla. Presentación disponible en Inglés y Español. Presentado por Gene Chávez.

Gene es consultor de asuntos de diversidad y presidente de Chávez and Associates.

Gene Chavez
He/Him/His
gtchavez45@gmail.com
(913) 206-2936
Tonganoxie
You’ve Got Mail: Exploring Letter-Writing Through Time

At one time, daily letter-writing bound us together. Today, ubiquitous emails, texts, and social media messages challenge this time-honored tradition. This talk weaves together a historical look at letter-writing from the pharaohs of Ancient Egypt and historical figures like Abigail Adams and Jane Austen to the intimate, everyday shared experiences between sweethearts, friends, and family members. Is letter-writing a tradition lost? Or will a renewed interest take hold again? Presented by Celia Daniels.

Celia is an independent museum consultant specializing in ethnographic collections.

Celia Daniels
She/Her/Hers
kscousin@sbcglobal.net
(785) 232-0332
Topeka

Dress for Success: Nelly Don and American Fashion

You can’t mention 20th-century women’s wear without thinking of Nelly Don. The Parsons native built a fashion empire on the vision that women deserved affordable, stylish clothing regardless of means or status. From humble beginnings, Don built a company that treated her workforce of women fairly, brought fashion to millions of American women, and became the largest dressmaker of the century. Ellen “Nell” Quinlan Donnelly’s story is one of innovation, triumph, and hard work—all rooted in her small-town Kansas upbringing. Presented by Marla Day.

Marla is the curator of Kansas State University’s Historic Costume and Textile Museum in Manhattan.

Marla Day
She/Her/Hers
mday@k-state.edu
(785) 532-1328
Manhattan
Learning from Gordon Parks

African American author, photographer, and filmmaker Gordon Parks was well known for his documentation of American life and culture. Born in Fort Scott, Kansas, in 1912, he is one of the most esteemed image makers of all time. In this presentation, photographer Ann Dean discusses the impact and inspiration found in Parks’s books: The Learning Tree, A Choice of Weapons, and Half Past Autumn. These books help illustrate Parks’s mother’s teachings centered in love, dignity, and hard work, and provide a starting point to talk about his struggles, choices, and triumphs – all great life lessons for those searching to find their way in this complicated world. Presented by Ann Dean.

Ann is a freelance photographer and artist who also teaches photography at the Lawrence Art Center.

Ann Dean
anndean@sunflower.com
Lawrence

“We, The People of Kansas …”
The Story of Kansas’s Founding Documents, 1820-2020

A nation or state’s founding documents speak to the values and aspirations of its people, and at a functional level, provide the functions of government. For the United States, these are the Constitution and Declaration of Independence, and for Kansas, the 1859 Wyandotte Constitution qualifies. It stipulated the form of government, a bill of rights, and systems for elections, education, public institutions, and even the formation of counties and townships. This talk will explore the key components of the Wyandotte Constitution and look at other foundational documents in the state’s history. It will also explore the modifications to the constitution to expand the role of government and rights for individuals over the 160 years of statehood. Presented by Virgil Dean.

Virgil is retired as consulting editor and editor of Kansas History: A Journal of the Central Plains.

Virgil Dean
He/Him/His
vwdean51@gmail.com
(785) 424-5115
Lawrence
The Kansas City Monarchs and America’s National Pastime

2020 marked two major milestones for baseball: the Negro Leagues celebrated their 100th anniversary and Major League Baseball merged statistics of these African American players with those of the major league. The history of Negro League baseball in America mirrors the racial strife experienced by African Americans in society. It was plagued by discrimination, racism, and inequity, while its athletes were celebrated for their resiliency, professionalism, and athleticism. The Kansas City Monarchs barnstormed across Kansas and the region to play more than 400 games between 1920 and 1957 against local towns. This talk sheds new light on this sports history and the history of baseball in Kansas. Presented by Phil Dixon.

Phil is a historian and co-founder of the Negro Leagues Baseball Museum.

Phil Dixon
He/Him/His
Philsdixon@aol.com
(816) 922-0680
Belton, MO

Poets of Kansas

Kansas has a rich history of wonderful poets, and this presentation will explore and present the work of eight pioneers who roamed the wheat fields, tallgrass, and landscapes of the Sunflower State, fashioning words into moving stanzas. Presented by Dennis Etzel Jr.

Interested in hosting a poetry writing workshop following this presentation? Contact Dennis for more information about hosting a poetry workshop. Separate fee applies.

Dennis is a Kansas poet and senior lecturer at Washburn University.

Dennis Etzel Jr
He/Him/His
dennis.etzeljr@washburn.edu
(785) 554-2018
Topeka
This presentation brings together the dynamics of immigration told through the lens of visual art and poetry. It showcases an interactive exploration of a personal journey from the heart of Colombia to the heart of the United States, exploring the conundrum of belonging in unfamiliar surroundings while straddling two different cultures and narratives. Presentation available in English and Spanish. Presented by José Faus.

José is an independent teacher, artist, and founder of the Latino Writers Collective in Kansas City.

They Changed My Name / Cambiaron Mi Nombre
Esta presentación reúne las dinámicas de inmigración presentadas a través del lente de las artes visuales y poesía. Muestra una exploración interactiva de un viaje personal desde el corazón de Colombia hasta el corazón de Estados Unidos, explorando el dilema de pertenecer a un entorno desconocido mientras se divide entre dos culturas y narrativas diferentes. Presentación disponible en Inglés y Español. Presentado por Jose Faus.

José es maestro independiente, artista, y fundador del Colectivo de Escritores Latinos “Latino Writers Collective” en Kansas City.

José Faus
carridos@gmail.com
(816) 809-4074
Kansas City, MO
The Wizard Behind Oz

If you’re from Kansas, you’ve surely encountered plenty of Wizard of Oz jokes and quips. Where’s Dorothy? You’re not in Kansas anymore! I’m melting! But what you may not know is the fascinating story behind L. Frank Baum’s classic The Wonderful Wizard of Oz. This talk explores the unique appeal of this first truly American fairy tale, and its legacy on our culture from speech, to music, to media. This presentation pulls back the curtain on Baum’s crowning achievement. Presented by Chris Glasgow.

Chris serves as curator at the Oz Museum in Wamego.

Chris Glasgow
curator@ozmuseum.com
(785) 458-8686
Wamego

A New View of Kansas in Spanish Language Literature

Kansas—the “heart” of the United States. This is how many Americans view Kansas. But how do other nations see us? A different view of this place and the people who inhabit it emerges in literary works from Cuban, Mexican, Colombian, and Spanish authors. This talk focuses on works written from the 1940s to the present and offers a unique sense of place through the eyes of others. Presented by Miguel González-Abellás.

Miguel is a professor of Spanish and chair of the Modern Languages department at Washburn University.

Miguel González-Abellás
He/Him/His
miguel.gonzalez-abellas@washburn.edu
(785) 670-2015
Topeka
Willa Cather’s Prairie

F. Scott Fitzgerald’s The Great Gatsby and Willa Cather’s Pulitzer Prize–winning novel O! Pioneers speak to the themes of individualism and self-destruction played out in two distinctly strong main characters. But from there, the two protagonists diverge. One finds rural life outdated; the other embraces it. Using “Jay” and “Alexandra” as guides, this talk explores the value of rural life and the way it is often portrayed as lesser-than. Presented by Rachel Griffis.

Rachel is an assistant professor of language and literature at Sterling College.

Rachel Griffis
She/Her/Hers
rachel.griffis@sterling.edu
(620) 278-4326
Sterling

Women Who Made a Difference: The Story of M. Madeline Southard

Stories of strong Kansas women are inspiring, and M. Madeline Southard’s tale is no exception. During her 90 years, she became internationally known in the Methodist church for her activism and feminist beliefs. She founded the International Association of Women Ministers in 1919, petitioned for full clergy responsibilities for women in the Methodist Episcopal Church, and was a missionary and advocate for social justice throughout her life. This talk will unpack the impact her Kansas upbringing had on her unconventional career as a reverend and her work for equal rights for women in all aspects of liturgical life. Presented by Laura Hartley.

Laura is an event manager for Newman University and holds a master’s degree in public history from Wichita State University.

Laura Hartley
She/Her/Hers
leh71123@gmail.com
(316) 992-6266
Wichita
The Civil War in Kansas

For Kansans, the violent guerrilla warfare between proslavery and antislavery forces known as Bleeding Kansas foreshadowed the national Civil War to come. From 1861-65, the border struggle continued to heat up as Kansans fended off Confederate attacks, accepted the formerly enslaved into their communities, and engaged in bitter political debates. Men of all backgrounds—white, black, and Native American—served in uniform, while women managed farmsteads and formed societies to help the needy. This talk presents the story of Kansas during the Civil War and how it helped shape the state’s image for years afterward. Presented by Will Haynes.

Will is the director of engagement and learning for Watkins Museum of History in Lawrence.

Will Haynes
He/Him/His
whaynes@watkinsmuseum.org
(315) 373-3692
Lawrence

Pandemic on the Prairie

School closures, mask mandates, social distancing, infection waves, debates over a disease’s origin, disparities in health care access, quarantine fatigue. These descriptors could apply to current times as easily as to 1918 when the world experienced its last major pandemic. The influenza epidemic, also known as the Spanish Flu, killed approximately 50 million people worldwide, 676,000 Americans, and over 12,000 Kansans between 1918-1920. While a world war waged, fear and anxiety also loomed at home. This talk tells the stories of how Kansas coped during this tumultuous time, including stories of Kansans Amelia Earhart and Dwight Eisenhower as well as lesser-known stories of Latinos, African Americans, and Native peoples. This presentation can also be tailored to a specific community or region of the state. Presented by Kara Heitz.

Kara is a lecturer in the Liberal Arts department at the Kansas City Art Institute.

Kara Heitz
She/Her/Hers
kheitz@kcai.edu
(202) 213-3201
Mission Hills
Fresh Produce: Kansas’s Orchardists, Market Growers, and Truck Farmers

In Kansas, agriculture is king. Our roots are connected to the land and crops harvested from the soil. This talk highlights Kansas’s commercial specialty crops, agriculture experimentation, horticultural “royalty” marketing, and the evolving local foods movement. Learn about Kansas’s nationally known heritage apple; the crabapple king’s downfall; the successful gardening secrets of freed slaves, entrepreneurs, and early suburbanites; the state’s connection to exotic fruit introduction; the 1960s counterculture influence on today’s market mainstays; future outlooks; and county-specific produce projection. Presented by Cindy Higgins.

Cindy is a journalist and historian of Kansas industry.

Cindy Higgins
(785) 542-2606
cinhiggins@yahoo.com
Eudora

Sunflower Music

Poet Henry Wadsworth Longfellow famously described music as being “the universal language of mankind.” Music transcends race, gender, class, and geography and throughout history humans have used music to communicate stories, express emotions, and connect us to one another and moments in time and place. Music provides a lifeline when we’re at a crossroads, reminds us of days gone by, and can provide welcomed motivation when it’s time to make a change. What is it like to be a musician from Kansas and what does their music tell us? From Martina McBride and Melissa Etheridge to Charlie Parker and Janelle Monáe, this presentation highlights artists and musicians from the Sunflower State and takes a deeper look into how the power of place informs and inspires us musically. Presented by Cash Hollistah.

Cash Hollistah is a rapper, arts educator, and is on the board of directors of the Kansas Music Hall of Fame.

Cash Hollistah
cashhollistah@gmail.com
(785) 577-5618
Salina
Tricksters and Wise Women: How Stories Travel the World

Folktales reveal what we value, what makes us laugh, what makes us cry, and what we hope to be. There are many versions of the classic Cinderella fairy tale, each representing the culture and place of the people who tell them. At their core, folktales tell life lessons and present the role tricksters and wise women often played. This talk will uncover the differences between myth, legend, tall tale, and folktale, and explore differences between cultural appropriation and cultural appreciation. Presented by Priscilla Howe.

Priscilla is a professional storyteller and author from Lawrence.

Priscilla Howe
She/Her/Hers
priscilla@priscillahowe.com
(785) 331-6181
Lawrence

Kansas Legends and Folktales

Grasshoppers so big that cowboys can ride them to herd cattle. Summers so hot that corn pops in the field. Rancher Henry Mudge wrecking pianos, shooting sheep, and fooling European dignitaries. Kansas is a place of big skies and tall tales, and big exaggerated narratives like these help us understand the character of our state and its people. This talk will explore some of Kansas’s most outlandish legends and folktales and help audiences decipher between a myth (folk religion), legend (folk history), and tale (folk literature). When possible, local legends and folktales—and what they say about that particular community—will be discussed. Presented by Jim Hoy.

Jim is a folklorist who works with the Center for Great Plains Studies at Emporia State University.

Jim Hoy
jhoy@emporia.edu
(620) 341-0398
Emporia
Dig It: Kansas Archaeology

Archaeology helps us to understand human history and culture providing insights about where and how people lived. But how do archaeologists locate their next dig site? And how do archaeologists develop a plan of action, engage with Indigenous tribes with connections to an area, and process a dig site? This talk will uncover the early history of Kansas archaeology and how more recent findings are reshaping our understanding of native peoples who inhabited this land now known as Kansas. Following the presentation will be a short demonstration of how stone tools are made. Presented by Destry Jackson.

Destry Jackson is an archaeologist who has worked on digs in Kansas and Israel.

Destry Jackson
She/Her/Hers
destroypedia@gmail.com
(785) 470-7016
Norcatur

Listening to Place: Nature and Poetry Walks

Connecting with the natural world can provide a wellspring of knowledge and inspiration, enabling us to (re)discover strategies for living in the world, to grieve and heal after loss, and realign our thinking toward kinship, community, and sustainability. This beginner-friendly nature and poetry walk will be oriented to connecting with the more-than-human world through literature in the environmental humanities. By the words of poets, writers, and our own senses, this hike will engage with diverse habitats throughout Kansas to help participants listen to the often-unseen wisdom around us. This program is adaptable to meet participants’ accessibility needs. Presented by Megan Kaminski.

Megan is an associate professor of English and co-director of the Global Grasslands CoLABorative at the University of Kansas.

Megan Kaminski
She/Her/Hers or They/Their/Thiers
kaminski@ku.edu
(913) 346-2160
Lawrence
Army of Amazons: Women’s Fight for Labor Rights in Kansas Coalfields

In December 1921, thousands of women in southeast Kansas rose up to fight injustice in the area coalfields. These women were immigrants from Eastern European nations as well as Kansas born. After a months-long strike by the coalminers, the women joined the cause. In the short term, their efforts crippled mine production for nearly a month; in the longer term, their continued activism impacted future statewide elections and national legislation. This talk will share the stories of these women, christened the “Amazon Army” by The New York Times, and their fight for democracy and labor rights in Kansas’s coalfields. Presented by Linda O’Nelio Knoll.

Linda is an educator and historian in Pittsburg.

Linda Knoll
She/Her/Hers
lindaoknoll@swbell.net
(620) 231-0499
Pittsburg

You Say Tomato, I Say Tomahto: Evolution of Language in Kansas

We’ve all heard that newscasters are trained to speak with a Midwest accent—the so-called “accent from nowhere.” In fact, language reflects people, history, and community. It is intimately tied to our immigrant past, a foundation that, surprisingly, is always changing. This talk will examine the ways language has changed in Kansas over the past hundred years through the examination of archival and contemporary oral history. Presented by Mary Kohn.

Mary is an associate professor of English and the director of the Chapman Center for Rural Studies at Kansas State University.

Mary Kohn
She/Her/Hers
maryekohn@gmail.com
(828) 337-4003
Manhattan
If These Walls Could Talk

Murals seem to be nearly everywhere in Kansas towns, both big and small. However, it's not a new tradition! From the iconic John Steuart Curry murals in the state's capitol to the frescoes of Jean Charlot in Atchison, and the many murals by artists commissioned as part of the New Deal, murals have long graced our public spaces. This talk will explore the artists, meanings, and impetus behind the state's rich collection of public murals, and how they reflect an image of who we are as Kansans. Presented by Dave Loewenstein.

Dave is an artist based in Lawrence.

Dave Loewenstein
He/Him/His
doewenstein@hotmail.com
(785) 550-8531
Lawrence

Last Stand at Rebel Creek: The Osage as Union Allies in Civil War Kansas

As conflicts between states increased during the Civil War, both the Union and the Confederacy tried to use the Osage to achieve their own aims. Initially divided over how their people should respond in the face of escalating struggles, the Osage eventually emerged as important allies of the Union forces, thwarting an 1863 Confederate expedition tasked with reviving Southern resistance in Colorado and New Mexico territories. This presentation explores the Osage contributions to the Union cause in Kansas during the Civil War. Presented by Isaias McCaffery.

Isaias J. McCaffery is professor of history at Independence Community College.

Isaias McCaffery
He/Him/His
imccaffery@indycc.edu
(620) 714-0037
Independence
Beyond Brown: Mexican Struggles for Equality Before and After Brown V. Board

The momentous 1954 Brown v. Board of Education Supreme Court case dismantled racial segregation in public schools. Yet, the segregation experienced by Mexican and Mexican American students is often overlooked. This presentation looks at the ways the Latino communities banded together to fight discrimination and demand equal protection under the law, focusing special attention on Kansas examples. Presented by Valerie Mendoza.

Valerie is a lecturer and director of the Strengthening Institutions grant at Washburn University.

Valerie Mendoza
She/Her/Hers
valmarmen@gmail.com
(785) 845-6385
Topeka

Holocaust Stories of Resistance and Resilience

Meet two courageous men who fought to survive the horrors of the Holocaust and build new lives of hope in Kansas. Teenagers Lou Frydman, a Holocaust survivor, and Jarek Piekalkiewicz, a Polish resistance fighter, both defied daunting odds and lost everyone and everything dear to them. Despite their personal tragedies, each summoned bravery to build a new life in Kansas. How does one make a life in a new land? Their stories, shared through the broad history of the Holocaust, World War II, and the rise of Polish resistance, demonstrate their valor and hope in finding new meaning to life. This presentation is based on the book Needle in the Bone authored by presenter Caryn Mirriam-Goldberg.

Caryn has been a Humanities Kansas scholar since 1992 and was the Poet Laureate of Kansas from 2009-2013.

Caryn Mirriam-Goldberg
She/Her/Hers
carynmirriamgoldberg@gmail.com
(785) 766-7159
Lawrence
Voices of Japanese “War Brides” in Postwar Kansas

Japanese women fled the devastation of a war-torn Japan after World War II to find challenges in a strange, new world. After marrying US military men and moving to the United States, these young women often faced challenges and hardship while others found opportunity and success. How did they adjust to a Western world and a military culture? How did they maintain connection to their homes and families back in Japan? This talk will share the voices of Japanese women who triumphed amidst great struggle to find community, connection, and cultural identity in the place they viewed as the last destination of their lives— the Kansas prairie. Presented by Ayako Mizumura.

Ayako is the academic director of the University of Kansas’s Center for East Asian Studies, a role she’s held since 2013.

Ayako Mizumura
She/Her/Hers
mizu@ku.edu
(785) 979-0070
Lawrence

The Disability Rights Movement

In the 1960s, people with disabilities and their allies fought to ensure full citizenship and civil rights to a population often overlooked or approached with pity. Efforts to seek equal rights and protections under the law occurred at the federal, regional, and local levels, including an important case in Lawrence. This talk celebrates the contributions of those who worked to realize critical legislation in this movement for social justice and explores those who made it happen. Presented by Ray Mizumura-Pence.

Ray is a professor of American studies at the University of Kansas.

Ray Mizumura-Pence
He/Him/His
8rp14ence@gmail.com
(785) 304-2966
Lawrence
What a Ride! Rural Community-Owned Carnivals

Across Kansas, late summer brings county fair season and all the fun that goes along with it. But what happens when the carnival stops coming? These community connectors have largely gone by the wayside due to economic challenges, but some counties have united to host community-owned carnivals. This talk will delve into the history of the carnival in Kansas, and the recent herculean efforts by small, rural communities to keep this tradition alive and thriving. Presented by Erika Nelson.

Erika is an independent artist and educator, scouring nooks and crannies across the United States in search of the odd and unusual.

Erika Nelson
She/Her/Hers
worldslargestthings@gmail.com
(785) 760-0826
Lucas

Railroaded: The Industry that Shaped Kansas

Few industries dominated the economy of the nation in the 19th century more than the railroad. Railroads brought immigrant settlers, created jobs, and fed beef markets in the East. They enabled regular mail service and the adoption of standard time. Most Kansas towns were founded because of the railroad, and few survived without it. Yet the advancement of the railroad industry came at a significant cost to the Plains Indians who were forcibly displaced by this westward expansion. This presentation examines the complicated legacy of railroads and the impact on Native peoples who called Kansas home. Presented by Leo Oliva.

Leo is a historian with a research focus on 19th-century Kansas.

Leo E. Oliva
oliva@ruraltel.net
(785)425-7312
Woodston
Women’s Work for Women: The Kansas State Industrial Farm for Women

In the years between the two world wars, over 5,000 women were detained at the Kansas State Industrial Farm for Women in Lansing for having a venereal disease. Under state legislation Chapter 205, these women were sent to the Farm without a trial and with no other criminal offense (interestingly, men were rarely subjected to the same punishment). This talk will explore the lives of all women involved—the women activists who lobbied to create the Farm, the professionals who worked there, and the inmates whose freedoms were compromised. Presented by Nicole Perry.

Nicole has a PhD in sociology and works at the University of Kansas.

Nicole Perry
She/Her/Hers
nikkiperry@gmail.com
(913) 706-2782
Lawrence

Mapping Inequality

Federal and State policies in the early 20th century restricted financial resources to African Americans for housing. Known as redlining, it was followed by another historically discriminatory practice twenty years later—urban renewal. These two programs segregated and changed communities across the nation. This presentation will explore its history and the lingering impact on today's communities. Presented by Donna Rae Pearson.

Donna Rae is the local historian librarian at the Topeka & Shawnee County Public Library.

This presentation will be available April 2022.
Doing Time in Kansas: The Evolution of Corrections

Prison life is drastically different from today’s pop culture portrayals. Prisons historically operated on a punishment-based system until an increasingly humanitarian approach prevailed. Modern incarceration methods seek to reintegrate inmates back into society as productive, contributing citizens. This talk will explore the evolving world “inside the walls” and its impact on society. Presented by Laura Phillippi.

Laura is an historian based in Leavenworth.

Laura Phillippi
She/Her/Hers
historianlaura@yahoo.com
(913) 547-3447
Leavenworth

Charles Curtis: The First Native American Vice President

Charles Curtis was the 31st vice president of the United States and the first member of an Indigenous tribe to hold this position. Curtis served as President Herbert Hoover’s vice president from 1929 to 1933, during a time when prejudice towards Native Americans was intense and widespread. This presentation will explore Curtis’s Kaw heritage and political rise from Topeka lawyer to Hoover’s running mate in Washington, D.C. Presented by Erin Pouppirt.

Erin Pouppirt is an independent scholar and a member of the Kaw Nation.

Erin Pouppirt
eblackshere@yahoo.com
913-322-1740
Overland Park
World’s Fair Remnants in Kansas

Ice cream cones. Ferris wheels. Hot dogs. Cotton candy. All these iconic items were first introduced at world’s fairs held in America. The very first international exposition, known commonly as a world’s fair, launched in London in 1851 at the Crystal Palace. Since then, innovations in architecture, engineering, foods, and futuristic visions have debuted at fairs across the globe, including ones held in the United States. Oftentimes lasting legacies remained, such as Seattle’s Space Needle, Forest Park in St. Louis, and the US Open site in New York. Surprisingly, Kansas, which has never hosted an international exhibition, is home to at least four striking legacies of significant world’s fairs. This talk will share the history and significance of international exhibitions worldwide and focus on the wonders held today in the towns of Lawrence, Lindsborg, and Wamego. Presented by Thomas Prasch.

Thomas is a professor and chair of the History department at Washburn University.

Thomas Prasch
He/Him/His
tom.prasch@washburn.edu
(785) 357-0928
Topeka
A New Generation of Veterans: Stories From Iraq and Afghanistan

The wars in Iraq and Afghanistan gave rise to a new generation of veterans. They challenged society’s traditional notions of military services and raised questions about the role of the US in global conflicts. Soldiers from Kansas were some of the first deployed to fight in Iraq and Afghanistan. They returned again and again, yet their stories remain largely untold. Modern communication platforms connected these veterans to family and friends instantaneously but left little written record for future generations. This talk reviews key events of America’s longest war to date and discusses methods to collect and share these stories from American veterans. Presented by Murl Riedel.

Architecture of the People’s Houses

Kansas has 105 county courthouses and hundreds of city halls, plus a few more state capitals than you might expect. The manifestation of the greatest ideals occurs in these buildings, where the work of the people’s democracy is in action. The designs of these buildings tell us about the evolution of local government in the state. Larger societal issues, such as the Free State and the Civil Rights movements, can also be examined through the architecture of place. Some resemble Greek and Roman temples of democratic ideals while others convey the Victorian notions of civility. Still others are nondescript storefronts. Regardless of scale and beauty, these buildings represent symbols of our shared values and convey much about our communities. Presented by Murl Riedel.

Murl is a fiscal analyst and retired major from the Kansas Army National Guard.

Murl Riedel
He/Him/His
murl.riedel@gmail.com
(785) 207-0503
Topeka
Civil Discourse, Deliberative Engagement, & Leading with Humility

How do we engage in civil conversations when we disagree? What can history teach us about bridging differences through public discussions? This presentation explores the role of civil discourse through the tumultuous 1930s and during the last two decades revealing how historical efforts can inform how to advance local efforts today and strengthen our democracy. Presented by Tim Shaffer.

Tim Shaffer is the director of the Institute for Civic Discourse and Democracy and an associate professor in the department of communication studies at Kansas State University.

Tim Shaffer
He/Him/His
tjshaffer@ksu.edu
(785) 532-6849
Manhattan

African American Musicians in Kansas 1860-1920

African American musicians from 1860-1920 are often part of an under-told story in Kansas history. Not defined as traditionally Black music, these musicians played in mandolin quartets, cornet bands, orchestras, and string bands. They performed as itinerant musicians and jubilee singers at civic events, weddings, fairs, barn dances, and private homes. They were an important feature of the musical landscape of Kansas, and their history mirrors the history of Kansas itself: the struggle of abolition, the Civil War, and Western migration. This talk explores the dynamic musical history of African Americans, and the social and cultural impacts in Kansas. Presented by Lem Sheppard, who will also perform musical samples.

Lem is an internationally known guitarist and vocalist.

Lem Sheppard
He/Him/His
lemshep@yahoo.com
(620) 875-9131
Pittsburg
A Creative Guide to Writing Your Family’s Stories

We all love discovering a fantastic tale of our family’s past—whether it be the distant relative who journeyed on the Mayflower or the grandmother who riveted airplanes at a World War II factory. But how do we share these stories in engaging ways? This workshop provides the tools to enrich genealogical research with story and memory so that readers will feel what it was like to be in that moment. Exercises include developing characters, describing places and events of importance, and finding the heart of a story with the goal of creating an irresistible read. Presented by Kim Stanley.

Kim is a professor of English and chair of the Department of Modern Languages at McPherson College.

Kim Stanley
She/Her/Hers
stanleyk@mcpHERSON.edu
(620) 755-1080
McPherson

Researching Your Home and the People Who Lived There

Researching a property, be it an old home, a new business, or a section of pastureland, can do more than tell us the history of a space. It can also build a human connection to the people who came before us and the times in which they lived. This talk, which can be customized to highlight local resources, shares creative ways to study documents and assemble relevant narratives from maps, deeds, newspapers, and often unsought or unknown resources. This is ideal for those new to seeking out family and community stories, and helpful for those stymied by a dead end. Presented by Diana Staresinic-Deane*.

Diana is the executive director of Franklin County Historical Society and Old Depot Museum in Ottawa.

Diana Staresinic-Deane (Pronounced “STAH-reh-SIN-ik-DEEN”)
She/Her/Hers
dianastaresinicdeane@gmail.com
(785) 248-4815
Ottawa
US Presidential Libraries and Museums

US Presidential Libraries and Museums are impressive structures that act as repositories of valuable presidential records and artifacts. But who started this trend and when? What role do these institutions play in how and what we remember? Why are they important? This presentation delves into the who, what, when, where, and why of the 13 US Presidential Libraries and Museums, including the Dwight D. Eisenhower Presidential Library, Museum, and Boyhood Home in Abilene, and explores why they are critical to the educational health of our country. Presented by Anita Tebbe.

Anita teaches continuing education courses and is a retired professor in the Legal Studies Department at Johnson County Community College.

Anita Tebbe
She/Her/Hers
atebbe@jccc.edu
(913) 961-7857
Olathe

Married to Adventure: Osa and Martin Johnson’s Films

Pioneers in the early history of documentary filmmaking, Kansans Osa and Martin Johnson traveled the world filming people and wildlife in the early 20th century. Their prolific career took them from the South Seas to Africa, and they shared their adventures across the nation in films, books, and presentations. While considered groundbreaking in their day, nowadays their work can be viewed as exploitative. This presentation will delve into their successes in early filmmaking and revisit their vision for their work against today’s differing standards. Presented by Mary Ann Thompson.

Mary Ann is the retired Kansas Room librarian at the Hays Public Library and an instructor at Fort Hays State University.

Mary Ann Thompson
She/Her/Hers
maryannthompson459@gmail.com
(785) 628-6399
Hays
Good Trouble

The late political activist and US congressman John Lewis coined the phrase “good trouble” to describe his civil disobedience in the 1960s. Others, who did not share his vision, considered his actions as merely “disturbing the peace.” Notwithstanding these conflicting perspectives, Lewis raises an interesting question: “What role have the humanities played in times of crisis, contentiousness, and incredible disagreement?” This talk will seek to answer this question by looking at selected works, such as Abraham Lincoln’s Emancipation Proclamation, Booker T. Washington’s Atlanta Exposition speech, Martin Luther King Jr.’s “Letter from Birmingham Jail,” Barack Obama’s consolation speeches to victims of gun violence at Sandy Hook and Charleston, and how they frame today’s perspectives and debates about racism. Presented by John Edgar Tidwell.

Edgar is professor emeritus of English at the University of Kansas.

John Edgar Tidwell
tidwelje@ku.edu
(785)331-4201
Lawrence

Love, Marriage, and Citizenship in Early 20th Century America

When exactly did the expectations about love and marriage become cemented in American society? The path to marriage wasn’t always romantic dinners, over-the-top proposals, and destination weddings. A great cultural shake-up occurred in the early 20th century when arranged marriages to immigrant “picture brides” became popular. While arranged marriage in America was not uncommon, the conversations that resulted from this practice revealed a societal fascination with love, romance, and race that informed ideas of democratic marriage. This talk looks at the role marriage played during this time as a cultural and legal institution. Presented by Kathryn Vaggalis.

Kathryn has a PhD in American studies at the University of Kansas.

Kathryn Vaggalis
She/Her/Hers
kvaggalis@gmail.com
(417) 689-2205
Lawrence
Pride: From Stonewall to Small Town Kansas

The social revolution commonly known as Pride has deep connections to Kansas, and today more Kansans and their communities are welcoming their LGBTQ neighbors and friends. The events at Stonewall Inn in Greenwich Village in 1969 galvanized a generation to stand up for their civil rights. Kansans contributed to this early history, including the design of the iconic rainbow flag. This talk will trace early struggles to gain equality in rights for LGBTQ individuals and today’s broad acceptance of Pride in rural Kansas. Presented by Brandon West.

Brandon is the executive director of the national nonprofit organization Project Q&A, Inc., and the development coordinator for the Independence Public Library.

Brandon West
He/Him/His
brandon@projectqna.org
(620) 891-0177
Independence

Free Did Not Mean Welcome

Millions of African Americans walked away from the South after Emancipation looking for freedom. For some it meant a journey to Kansas, believing “free state” meant free of racial discrimination. Discover how many realized that for Black people in Kansas “free” did not necessarily mean “welcome.” Presented by Dr. Carmaletta Williams.

Carmaletta is a former professor of English and African American studies at Johnson County Community College. She is currently the executive director of the Black Archives of Mid-America in Kansas City.

Carmaletta Williams
drcarma5@gmail.com
Grandview, MO
Ruralpreneurs: Tumbleweeds and Talents in Kansas Communities

How can businesses succeed in small town Kansas? The answers can be found in what we have termed “ruralpreneurs” – innovative entrepreneurs who have built successful enterprises in small town Kansas, and strengthened their communities as a result. This presentation highlights real-world examples of Kansas entrepreneurs who have built businesses and created jobs and opportunities in a rural setting. These include innovative businesses in Marysville, Garden City, Downs, Neodesha, and more. The presentation also honors the emerging role of diversity, technology, and telecommunications that have brought about so many changes in society. It also reflects the importance of a spirit of service and community. This fascinating, inspiring, fun, and informative presentation highlights rural Kansans and builds pride in our state.

Ron Wilson is the director of the Huck Boyd National Institute for Rural Development at Kansas State University in Manhattan.

Ron Wilson
rwilson@ksu.edu
Manhattan

The Promise and Pitfalls of Social Media

Social media arrived with hope and promises. Facebook wants to connect the world, and Twitter’s mission is to let everybody share their ideas instantly. But even the best of ideas have unintended consequences. Social media platforms have become powerful vectors where disinformation can quickly spread. Is social media a boon for free speech, or the greatest threat to it? Do these tools increase the ways we engage with our communities, or separate us from them? This presentation explores both the good aspects and bad outcomes of social media and examines the role each of us plays online. Presented by Stephen Wolgast.

Stephen Wolgast is the Knight Chair in Audience and Community Engagement for News and professor of the practice of journalism at the University of Kansas.

Stephen Wolgast
wolgast@ku.edu
Lawrence
City and County Governments in Kansas: What Do They Do and How are They Financed?

Ever wonder about your city and county government? This presentation will explore how Kansas counties are different from cities, what each does, and how they are financed. Attendees will learn about the history of these local governments and reflect on their own city and county. This presentation will cover issues like budgets, taxation, planning, zoning, economic development, and public health. Come hear about the often-unknown inner workings of the most impactful government in daily life...local city and county governments. Presented by Hannes Zacharias.

Rediscovering the Arkansas River

The Arkansas River pierces the heart of America, stretching 1,469 miles from the Tennessee Pass in Colorado to the Mississippi River at the eastern edge of Arkansas. As the nation’s sixth-longest river (45th longest in the world), it is both the economic engine and burden to millions of people and scores of cities bordering its banks. From raging rapids to diversion dams for irrigation ditches, to dry streambeds, and finally barge traffic, this presentation will examine the impact this wild, elusive, and embattled river has had on cities, towns and adjacent farmland, starting with the Louisiana Purchase in 1803 through to the present day. Presented by Hannes Zacharias.

Hannes Zacharias is the Robert A. Kipp, professor of practice in public administration at the University of Kansas.

Hannes Zacharias
He/Him/His
hzacharias4@gmail.com
(913) 709-8153
Lenexa